WELCOMED TO MAINE.

Mr. Blaine is Welcomed to His Home-His Talk About Trusts.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 16.—A great mass meeting was held in the city hall yesterday afternoon to express welcome to Hon. James G. Blaine. Three thousand persons were present. When Mr. Blaine appeared in the corridor of the building a great shout went up from the crowd outside and was re-echoed by the throngs in the hall, the men cheering and the ladies waving their handkerchiefs. As the gentlemen ascended the platform, General Harry B. Cleves was called upon to preside. He spoke briefly upon introducing Mr. Blaine.

Mr. Blaine, in response, said: I should not have left my home the very day after my arrival but for my desire to feel myself once more in touch with those with whom I have in previous years fought in many a good Republican contest. [Cheers.] Once more to mpare notes with those upon whose wisdom the party has always relied, namely, the Republican masses, as to what should be done at this crisis in the political affairs of the country, and in the history of the party which is its great ered his message, he had something to say to the American people about the danger of "trusts." I think there have since been no Democratic papers in the country, whether they understood the meaning of the word or not, Well, I shall not discuss trusts this afternoon, gether advantageous or disadvantageous. They are largely private affairs with which neither President Cleveland nor any private citizen has when the order was repeated: "Higher, that, the point which I wish to impress upon you -... 'He was standing on the steps you is that trust- are not the outgrowth nor in any way the incident of the protective policy, hands higher. His lantern dropped and as the President charges; that a protective policy no more breeds what the President considers the pestilence of trusts than does the veriest free trade country in the world, which is England: for England is literally plastered all over, with her system of free trade, with trusts. The very day I sailed for home, just a fortnight ago, I cut from a London journal the announcement that all the manufacturers of coffins and all the undertakers of the United the arm and through the hip, splintering Kingdom had gone into a trust [laughter], that it was to consist of $2,000,000 capital, which, in the language of the English financial market, was to have a large number of "preferential bonds," and that the yearly death rate might be expected to yield a semi-annual dividend of 12 per cent. [Laughter.] Now I think, my friends, that we might bury all the President's predictions of evils of trusts in this country, in the graves in which those coffins are about to go, prefer-ntial bonds and all, and we might do this by showing that so far from the protective policy generating trusts, an utter free trade policy generates them in far greater | Wiedand, on her way to this port was 100 number [cheers], and thus I leave the question.

Mr. Blaine then spoke on the flisheries dispute and the pending treaty; also the State contest, in which all the people of the State are interested.

LOST AT SEA.

Over One Hundred Persons Lost on a Sinking Steamship

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 .- The steamship Geiser, of the Thingvalla line, which left New York last Saturday for Stettin, was run into off Cape Race Tuesday by the steamship Thingvalla, of the same line, Her side was stove in and she sank rapidly. The panic-stricken people were got into boats as rapidly as possibly, the Thingvalla's boats being all used in the work of rescue. The Geiser sank so fast, however, that before the boats returned from the Thingvalla after their first trip, the disabled steamer had gone down, leaving scores of people struggling in the water. Many of these were picked up, but when the roll was called on board the Thingdefender. When President Cleveland deliv- valla it was found that seventy-two passengers and thirty-three of the crew of the Geiser were missing.

The Hamburg line steamship Wieland, which was in the vicinity, came up in time to assist in the work of rescue, and she divided the rescued party with the Thingvalla, the latter proceeding in a damaged condition for Halifax, while the Wieland proceeded to New York, arriving at quarantine late yesterday afternoon.

It is claimed that fourteen passengers and seventeen of the crew were saved, including Captain Miller.

The collision occurred off Sable Island. The Geiser sank in five minutes. The Thingvalla's passengers, 455 in number, were transferred to the Wieland and brought here with the fourteen passengers and seventeen of the crew of the Geiser. All others of the Geiser's seventytwo passengers and thirty-three crew were drowned.

Stories differ as to where the liability lies, if not wholly due to the fog and heavy sea. The Thingvalla struck the Geiser on the starboard amidships close on to four o'clock in the morning. The boats then parted and within five minutes the Geiser sank. The crew of the Thingvalla did all they could to save the Geiser's crew and passengers while still in doubt as to whether the Thingvalla was not dangerously disabled, but owing to the heavy sea only thirty-one were saved. No other vessel was near at the time. The miles away. At 11:30 o'clock on the morning on the 14th the Wieland was sighted. Signs of distress were made by the Thingvalla, and a transfer of the passengers began. The sea was then heavy, but no mishap occurred in the transfer of passengers. Captain Albers, of the Wieland, tells the following story: "At ten o'clock on the morning of August 14, we passed some wreckage floating in the sea, and suspected that an accident had happened somewhere near us. A little later we sailed through a sea of oil and sighted a broken boat of the Geiser. About 11:30 we sighted a steamer to the north about eight miles off and seeing she had a flag of distress up, we ran sel, came to us in a small boat and begged us to take off his passengers and those he had saved from the Geiser. He said his own vessel was so badly injured he expected her to sink at any moment. His forward compartment had been completely carried away from half way from the deck to below the water line. We sent out three of our boats, and the Thingvalla lowered two of hers, and in five hours we had transferred the saved passengers and crew of the Geiser and also the 455 passengers of the Thingvalla. The sea was very rough at the time and the work of transferring the passengers was very difficult. The immense hole in the Thingvalla's bow was then patched up as well as possible and she started for Halifax. The collision, so far as known, was caused by the

The following is the best list of the lost which can be obtained. It is made by striking off the names of those saved from the list of passengers as stated in the books of Passenger Agent Jensen.
